

The Road to Hell.

S. R. HOWSER, General Passenger Agent.

More young men purchase mileage over THE BOOZE ROUTE than all other lines combined. We don't use it ourselves, and advise you not to, but, if you will have it, then we will furnish you the best made, namely: Old Joe, Old Taylor, Old Prentice, Cedar Brook, J. P. Ripy, McKenna, Etc.

A TIGHT SHOE.

In the Anderson News, last week, there appeared a letter from President Jenkins, of the Kentucky University, containing these somewhat remarkable sentences: "I understand that in some paper of Anderson county (not yours) there recently appeared an article concerning the gift of Jas. R. York, founding a scholarship in Kentucky University. The article in question, I am told, represented that Mr. York was dissatisfied with his gift."

We presume that IT is the paper referred to by Dr. Jenkins, but, as to how he got the impression that we said or even intimated in the "Modern Fable," in our first issue, that Mr. York was dissatisfied with his gift, we do not know, for there is not a single word in the article which would justify any such conclusion. On the contrary, we have now, and have always had the impression that Mr. York, who is one of our most respected citizens, is not only thoroughly satisfied with his actions in the matter, but that he conscientiously believed he had done the best thing with his money.

The only object we had in view in the publication of the article in question was to call attention to the fact that there is much that could be done nearer home by generous donations for the education of the children of the poor in the only colleges or universities they will ever see—THE COMMON SCHOOLS.

We are no enemies of the college or the university, and are as proud of the success of these institutions in our State as any citizen can be, but we are equally friendly to that institution of learning to which the vast majority of the children of the State must look for their entire preparation for future citizenship, and may be pardoned if we express the hope that some of our more wealthy citizens, instead of giving to institutions which are already richly endowed, will use a portion of their wealth to provide comfortable school-houses for that boy and girl who will never see the inside of either college or university. Here is, indeed, a field for the exercise of the generosity of the man or woman who would be remembered as a public benefactor by future generations of Anderson county.

The most beautiful line of Holiday Goods in the city.
T. J. Ballard.

ANDERSON COUNTY.

Anderson county has an area of 200 square miles.

A population of about thirteen thousand.

A mild and equable climate. As good farming land as may be found in the State.

An educated and progressive citizenship.

Two telephone systems extending over the county.

An abundance of water-power for manufactories.

As low a tax-rate as can be found in any county of the State of equal population.

An assessed valuation of property amounting to about $4,000,000.

Twenty-nine postoffices.

Extensive undeveloped mines of lead and zinc.

Eighteen distilleries, which produce a larger quantity of distilled spirits than are produced in any other county of the State, aside from Jefferson.

Four large flouring mills.

A number of extensive saw-mills.

First-rate hotel accommodations in her many villages.

Up-to-date and energetic merchants and stock dealers.

Fifty public schools, under the care of enlightened and wide-awake teachers.

Popular, progressive and efficient county officers.

Her crops of tobacco always bring the largest prices in the market.

Her horses, cattle, sheep and hogs have a reputation which extends beyond the confines of the State.

She has 165 miles of macadamized turnpike road which belongs to the public.

She has twenty-five miles of railroad, and the Kentucky river on the eastern border, these affording the best of shipping facilities.

And there is no county in the State better provided with churches and Sunday-schools than "Old Anderson."

Combs and Brushes, we are told, are to be used extensively this season, and no one will be considered stylish without using them. Get a line on our complete line.

T. J. Ballard.

Folding Beds of every description and guaranteed sleep-producers. Get one.

Bond & Leathers.

Toilet Articles that please people. Call and see 'em.

Lawrenceburg Drug Co.

Gum Drops, 6c a pound at the Blue Grass Grocery.

Clean Shop,

Clean Towels,

Clean Mugs,

Clean Workmen,

Clean Shave,

Clean Trade,

That's

Hartman.

Everything

New

In the Way of

LIVERY,

and

Prices the Lowest.

J. R. Sawyer,

Woodford Street.

The Old King Coal who was a merry old soul was the right kind of Coal.

What Kind of COAL Have You?

If it is the mean kind that sputters and pouts, you didn't buy it of

R. L. THURMAN,